DRAIFLESSEN COLLECTION

across boundaries | 14 October 2018 to 27 January 2019

Maps significantly influence how we perceive the world. With their help, we orient ourselves. Maps are regarded as being truthful and precise. But is our trust in maps justified?

The exhibition puts historical and current maps in dialogue with artworks by international artists, which heighten the cartographic depiction of space or our perception of the influence of this medium on people's thinking and actions.

Starting from the characteristics of maps, the exhibition is structured in three closely interlinked areas. Knowledge illuminates the possibilities and limits of the map as a medium for recording world. Power looks at the development and legitimation, via maps, of orders and power relationships. Imagination in turn focuses on the map as a space for imagination and as a creative instrument.

The exhibition is an invitation to transgress mental boundaries and gain new perspectives on familiar images of the world. For particularly in our own day and age, with its tension between global interconnection and national demarcation, the juxtaposition of maps and artworks can make us aware of the origins and power of images of world.

Accompanying the exhibition a catalogue in German, English, and Dutch editions will be published.
